

NowSignage develops a LCD Hand Sanitiser Station so employers can play their important part in stopping the spread of infection and improving hygiene-- and use NowSignage's digital signage CMS with the in-built 22" display for important public health messaging or advertising content.

The user activates the 'Dispenser Management' app within your NowSignage account and if you're using a compatible Hand Sanitiser Dispenser that is running NowSignage digital signage, then we will send automatic notifications to your account to notify you when your dispenser is running low or requires a refill of sanitiser solution. You can then extract this data by downloading usage reports to better inform future decision making and provide insight into the effective positioning across your venue.

Richard Hutchinson, Sales Director at NowSignage explains: "... the opportunity to combine traditional CMS-driven audience digital signage with hygiene enhancement machines such as Digital Hand Sanitisers presents an incremental growth opportunity for the channel."

"This particular specialist market is expanding rapidly, and with governments globally beginning to mandate hygiene technology measures in many shops, offices, transportation hubs and other public spaces. The real test for the channel will be in delivering innovative, customer-centric technology solutions whilst ensuring adequate hygiene and cleansing measures are met".
