

Digital Signage Expo (DSE) may not have set an all-time attendance record this year, but it did deliver the highest buyer attendance (by percentage) in its 15-year show history-- 93.3% of total attendance were end-users, system integrators and advertising/brand executives.

End-users alone accounted for nearly 45% of the audience, a higher percentage than 2017.

Verified attendance was 4032-- on par with DSE's attendance performance over the past five years. (With one exception, 2017. In 2017 the show was fortunate enough to have co-locations with three other events-- GlobalShop, Cinemacon and Pizza Marketplace)-- which gave DSE a significant one-year attendance boost. (And probably much better pizza...)

International attendees were 17.5% of the overall attendance, coming from 60 countries.

A stunning new media installation illuminating Chicago's West Loop won the APEX Award for Installation of the Year is a 3000-square-foot (278.7 sq. m) display divided into 89 separated super-thin LED blades variously sized between 3.25 inches (8.25cm) to 15 inches (38cm) in width, and standing vertically anywhere from 6 feet (1.8m) to 22-feet (6.7m) tall. Creative content is provided by distinguished artists as well as students from partnering cultural and educational institutions. Check out the video in the link below...

:

150 Media Stream

DSE 2019 will be in March 26-28 at the Las Vegas Convention Center.

DSE and APEX Awards: The “Installation of the Year”

Written by Roger Douglas
25. 04. 2018

Watch The Installation of the Year 2018

Go Check out the Rest of the Annual APEX Award Winners